We anticipate beginning use of the MNC almost immediately for the purposes of developmental testing with commercial services envisioned soon after that. SMS will be initially supported followed by low data throughput and voice capabilities as SpaceX deploys further direct-to-device enabled satellites.

Let me know if you have any further questions.

Thanks,

[REDACTED]

Further to the question about timelines, what's the planned timeframe for an active service? Will it be calls and SMSs at the same time, or will the functionality be rolled out separately?

Regards,

General information

Mobile Network Codes (MNCs) form part of the International Mobile Subscriber Identity (IMSI), a unique number associated with wireless mobile phone technology (e.g. GSM). The IMSI is a unique number that identifies the network to which a subscriber belongs and the location of a device (e.g. whether the telephone user is a local subscriber or roaming). The IMSI is also used in charging, billing and accounting.

An IMSI is a fixed length number with 15 digits. It consists of a three-digit Mobile Country Code (MCC). The MCC for Australia is 505. The MCC is followed by a 2-digit or 3-digit MNC and a maximum 10-digit Mobile Station Identification Number (MSIN). MNCs in Australia are two digits in length.

The IMSI is stored in the Subscriber Identity Module (SIM) or a CDMA equivalent. Only one IMSI should be assigned to each mobile terminal or mobile user. In case of multiple subscriptions (subscriptions to more than one mobile service from one or more service providers), a mobile terminal or mobile user may be assigned a different IMSI for each subscription.

The assignment of MNCs is managed by the ACMA in accordance with Part 2 of Chapter 5 of the Numbering Plan, and ITU-T Recommendation E.212, the International identification plan for public networks and subscriptions.
