Publication of compliance results for SVOD Australian content requirement

Please note that the documentation in this email is not for further distribution beyond relevant staff within your company.

The ACMA is progressing implementation activities to support Subscription Video on Demand (SVOD) services to report on how they are meeting the Australian content requirement (contained in Part 8C of the Broadcasting Services Act 1992).

In June, we confirmed that the ACMA is expected to develop public reporting annually to share information with Australians about the operation of the requirement. This is consistent with government expectations of the ACMA, as well as our approach to publicly reporting on compliance with existing Australian content requirements for subscription television and commercial television.

The attached document shares:

- the ACMA's preliminary approach to annual publication of compliance results
- an illustrative template of what public reporting may look like.

The approach has been developed to balance the need for public transparency about the operation of the requirement, while acknowledging that certain data provided to the ACMA will be commercially sensitive and not for further distribution.

Should SVOD services wish to provide views on the ACMA's preliminary approach, we would welcome your engagement by written response by no later than COB Friday 14 August.

If you would like to meet with the ACMA to discuss the approach or any concerns, please reach out via response to this email to arrange a suitable time in the coming weeks.

Kind regards,
