- Consultation deliberate omission?

CL

- Wouldn't have had to do much more
- Are the concerns bad enough to be a breach? Probably not.
- On balance there's not a breach but ABC could have done more to make it clearer.
- Focused on the bad stuff in the ANAO report
- Re: Didn't talk about the project had praise and awards - didn't think that was bad enough
- Wayne Hitches:
    - Ambiguity about whether he was the person who gave the briefing to Lendlease and ABC was being intentionally ambiguous
- Stacked the program with critics rather than supporters: [redacted]
- Could have had some other voices eg. young veterans. Was this an omission? Or an editorial choice?

CL:

- Four different segments
- Music is different
- Last post ceremony
- Wouldn't go as far as what the ombudsman said.
- Some viewers may have understood this to be a continuous segment
- ABC has been a bit cavalier with this

Alana:

- ANAO report and how it was framed
- Not a breach but it really isn't that negative a report
- Noting how many contracts were involved here

CL: Would have been easy to call some of the positive out (re: ANAO)

CL:

- There is some real substance in the complaint

R:

- Bare essentials of catering to impartiality
- Very borderline

CL:

- Ombudsman report - we don't agree that at negative focus is not a problem per se
- What is due impartiality in this context
- Unduly favouring one perspective (what was due in the circumstances)

Path forward:

- Adjustments:
    - Tighten Hitches
        - Fairness
    - Tighten ANAO report
    - Tighten Bugle
- Will the other Authority members want to be across this
- Authority package for approval
